

Starcut is looking for a Director, Agency Project Management Operations to join our innovative team

As a head of our project management operations, you are responsible for delivering innovative mobile services that combine content, design and technology to help our clients transform their needs into high performance digital services.

Your tasks will include, among others, the following:

- Team leading and business operations management
- Project related account and resource management across Starcut
- Team member's performance level management through selection, training, motivation and coaching
- Collaboration and communications internally as well as with partners, sub-contractors and clients
- In-house development of processes and reporting related to project and operations management
- Financial planning and reporting

A successful applicant will have proven expertise in project management (min. 8 yrs. of experience in a multinational environment) and also several years of leadership position experience. You should have an understanding of media and/or mobile industry and digital communications technologies. Also experience in sub-contractor management is an advantage. Strong presentation and communication skills are essential.

As a person you have the ability to operate in a highly competitive, aggressive and fast moving industry. You have strong leadership qualities and working collaboratively with colleagues and team members comes naturally in order to create a result driven, team oriented environment. You are ambitious, enjoy challenges and working independently.

Excellent spoken and written English skills and international working experience is required.

We offer an international, dynamic working environment and opportunities for personal development. Our digital agency is an innovative and creative place; you work in the heart of the operations that create world-class mobile and web experiences. Position is based in Espoo, Finland.
